Over the past few weeks, it has been discovered that British Prime Minister Boris Johnson has not been respecting the Covid-19 lockdown restrictions. Whilst the rest of the country was in lockdown during part of 2020 and 2021, it is speculated that Boris Johnson was taking part in numerous social gatherings and parties. At the moment, the police are investigating around 12 events, two of which Johnson attended and a third of them being held at his apartment. This has led several members of the parliament to question his authority. If enough members of parliament trigger a vote against him, he could even be removed from his position.

Czech tennis players, Krejčíková and Siniaková won the Australian Open Female Doubles tournament. Their final game for gold was full of high blows from both sides, with the last Krejčíková's rocket hitting the baseline and their opponent not reaching it. They faced Danilina from Kazakhstan and Haddad Maia from Brazil, who have won all of their nine matches. Since they became a doubles partnership, they won the final of the Sydney International heading into the first Grand Slam of the year. The final game of the Australian Open lasted for almost three hours, which made it hard for the athletes to push themselves at the end of the game. However, on the last point of the game, Barbara Krejčíková was able to hit the tennis ball, so that it touched the baseline, and made it impossible for Danilina to reach it.

Valentines at ISP

Spectrum seminar and Gandy Grams

This Friday, make sure you stop by Ms. Michalsky's room during lunch on February 11th to join the Spectrum club for their Valentine's Day panel, open to any and all who want to join!

Ace, a 9th-grade member of the club, told us what it's all about:

"The point of the spectrum Club isn't only to constantly be on the go to solve equality issues, but we're also there to create a safe space for anyone, really, not just the LGBTQ+ community in ISP, to make our learning environment a better place. Everyone's constantly contributing, so it's not just a one-way thing." During the panel, both platonic and romantic relationships will be discussed, as well as aromanticism and asexuality, or anything else you feel like bringing up!

David also told us about his experience as a member of the club: "You feel a sense of community, it's close-packed, it's not just 15 kids in a room bundled together. You genuinely feel like you know the people."

And remember, it's for everyone. As Ace put it, "we just want to make Valentine's Day a more fun thing that isn't only focused on giving someone a box of chocolates. You should come because we're fun and you'll learn a lot — and we'll bring candy!"

Can't wait to see everyone there!!

STUCO is offering a letter delivery service for Valentine's day! For just 50czk, you can get a hand-written note with candy attached, delivered to a significant other's or dear friend's locker on Valentine's day - all anonymously, and done for you. Just order a letter at the cafeteria starting February 2nd, and make someone's day on february 14th.

Should we expect war?

(Aljazeera)

Since over a month ago, Russia has been deploying its troops to the Ukrainian-Russian border. Currently, there are an estimated 100,000 of them there; and while Russia denies the planning of an invasion, the rest of the world is staying alert, as Russia has seized Ukrainian territory before and may very well do it again. President Vladimir Putin has threatened "appropriate retaliatory military-technical measures" if what he calls the West's "aggressive moves" continue. So far, about 8,500 American troops have been put on heightened alert in the US in case NATO activates its Response Force.

We know very well what the degree of threats are and the way in which we must react, and no doubt we must avoid alarmist reactions", says EU foreign policy chief Josep Borrell. The Ukrainian and Russian populations both near and far from the border worry that a war will spark, similar to the one in 2014, when Russia annexed a large section of Ukraine called Crimea, with about 14,000 deaths.

Some additional information: The Czech Defense Ministry is planning on sending 37 million worth of artillery rounds to Ukraine, a proposal put forward on Wednesday last week (27.01). This act is meant as an important sign of solidarity with the country.
